WOMEN STRIKERS ATTACK GIRLS IN AUTOS OF BOSSES

Shirtwaist Makers Hurl Missiles from Roofs and Doorways at Strikebreakers.

Baskin & Babb, shirtwaist manufacturers at No. 128 Wythe Avenue, Williamsburg, attempted to-day to smuggle strikebreakers into their establishment in swift automobiles approaching from both North Ninth Street and Wythe Avenue. The general committee of the striking shirtwaist makers which has been directing the fight against all the Williamsburg factories had advance information of the ruse.

Hundreds of young women strikers were posted in doorways and along the roofs of both streets, armed with bricks and scuffling bullets. As the automobiles appeared they were heavily bombarded. The windows were broken and tops were punctured. The girls inside were cut and bruised.

There was a quick rally of the police of the Bedford Avenue Station, who charged through the streets, clearing the doorways. The missile throwers on the roofs did not wait for the police to dislodge them, but took refuge in the flats below, whose doors were eagerly opened to them. The police made four prisoners. The victims of the riot were able to go to work after their wounds had been dressed by ambulance surgeons.

Seven women were arrested in a similar fight between striking men and women workers of a factory at Leonard and Meserole Streets and the police of the Stagg Street Station had a riot in a state of turmoil for an hour.

"DIRTY DOZEN" CAUGHT.

Boy Trainriders Left Cries Written on Freight Cars.

A gang of schoolboy trainriders, known as "The Dirty Dozen," were rounded up by railroad detectives in Yonkers to-day and brought into the Police Court charged with disorderly conduct. The detectives claim they have been disrupting freight and passenger traffic on the New York Central for several weeks by placing torpedoes along the tracks and stopping the trains.

The passenger trains were stopped for amusement only, but the boys usually stopped the freight trains so they could climb on for a ride. They had a penchant for writing their names and addresses and an announcement of their membership in "The Dirty Dozen" on station platforms and telegraph poles along the railroad, and through these scribbles the detectives gathered in the gang.

LUMBERMEN FOUND DEAD.

Failed to Turn Off Gas in Park Row Lodging.

Two men past middle age, who registered under the name of "Martin & Co." at the Gilbert House, a lodging house for men at No. 182 Park Row, last night, were found dead in their beds this morning. The room was filled with gas. Death is believed by the police to have been accidental. Papers found in the men's pockets indicated that their names were George Wolf and Martin Hoenfeldt and that they had just come to New York from lumber camps near Remaji, Minn. Both men had letters in German in their pockets. Russian passports, found among their effects, indicated that they came from the Rostov provinces of Russia, largely inhabited by Germans.

REJECT WOULD-BE CITIZENS.

Eleven prospective citizens, who had been in this country from fourteen to twenty years, were unable to read from a child's school book when examined to-day by Supreme Court Justice Mulvan, in the Bronx. They were rejected and twenty-five applicants for citizenship were passed.

Justice Mulvan advised the would-be new citizens to stop reading newspapers in their native language and to begin reading papers published in the English language.

Woman Convicted of White Slavery.
Mrs. Margaret Brand, who maintained manicure parlors in an office building in Nassau Street, was found guilty to-day in the Criminal Branch of the Federal Court of violating the white slave law by bringing her niece, Annie Planer, seventeen years old, from Dayton for immoral purposes. Mrs. Brand at both trials claimed she had no knowledge of her niece's wrongdoing and that she brought the girl here to get her a place as stenographer.

Carried Loaded Automatic.
Frederick Blake, forty-five, who said he is a manufacturer of Worcester, Mass., was locked up in the East Fifty-first Street Station this morning charged with carrying concealed weapons and intoxication. He was arrested at Grand Central Station. When searched, the police say, his automatic pistol, fully loaded was found on Blake.

TA-RA-RA-RA! ENTER THE CHORUS, 18 IN ALL, IN BIG COURT SCENE

Burlesque Queens Appear to Foil Shoe Man They Call
Villain of the Cast.

Eighteen chorus girls of the Sam Howe Burlesque Company appeared in the Third District Municipal Court in West Fifty-fourth Street, at 9 o'clock to-day, and what they said about J. Miller, a theatrical shoe man of No. 518 West Fifty-fifth Street couldn't be printed in a family newspaper.

The chorus girls were witnesses for the defense in a suit brought by Miller to recover $107 from Sam Howe, manager of the show, said $107 being the value of eighteen pairs of pink satin slippers purchased at the beginning of the season.

Each of the girls had a pair of pink satin slippers under her arm. They agreed a burlesque chorus girl's life is hard enough, working two-day seven days a week and playing the Bronx this week, without having to get up in the middle of the night to be a witness.

Howe admitted the purchase of eighteen pairs of slippers for his chorus girls. Burlesque chorus girls have to pay for their own shoes, but Howe guaranteed the bill.

"After the second show," Howe explained to Justice Murray, "the shoes began to explode. Just two shows, Judge, and the shoes look like they were worn by soldiers in the trenches. Of course, the girls balk at paying and I don't blame 'em. Girls, come up here and show the Judge the shoes."

Instinctively, the Sam Howe chorus lined up in three lines, six abreast, and waited for the music. Mr. Howe was just about to clap his hands as a cue for forward march to the bench, when counsel for Miller made a quick entrance, left, and spoke these lines:

"Your Honor, I think we can settle this."

The Sam Howe chorus girls started to cry, "Hooryay! hooryay! hooryay!" But Mr. Howe stopped them with a gentle "Nix, nix!" Then the case was adjourned two weeks to give Howe and Miller an opportunity to reach a compromise.
